Re: Technical Analyst — HUD Group

COVER LETTER

Yardi and Entrata are competitors in the same market. I spent 8 years at Entrata owning the HUD side of that market — HAP allocation, HUD payment processing, income eligibility verification, AMI threshold calculations, Section 8/HCV and LIHTC recertification, gross rent updates, housing subsidy compliance, and tax credit calculations across 100K+ unit portfolios. Zero compliance violations across 6+ years of production. I did not work adjacent to this domain — I built and maintained the modules your HUD clients depend on, just on the competing platform.

On the technical side your JD specifically calls for: I processed 1.6M HUD and Tax Credit income limit records via SQL import scripts, wrote data fixes to correct data corruption caused by application issues and third-party integrations, designed data normalization and validation layers across all client environments, and optimized 200+ SQL queries (30% performance gain) through execution plan tuning, indexing, partitioning, triggers, log tables, and audit tables. I also created 56 state-specific housing certification documents with merge fields integrated with AWS S3 storage — exactly the kind of complex, multi-state compliance artifact your team builds and maintains.

On the support and escalation side: I built internal debugging tools that reduced resolution time by 40%, maintained a bug count below 10 for 6+ consecutive months, served as the technical escalation resource for complex schema and data issues, and documented module enhancements and bug fixes across 20+ production modules. The Yardi HUD Group's clients are dealing with the same federal regulations, the same data edge cases, and the same compliance pressures I navigated at Entrata. I can be productive from day one — not because I'm learning the domain, but because I've been living in it.

Sincerely,

Venkata Lakshmi Parimala Pasupuleti
