Hiring Manager
CREA, LLC
Indianapolis, IN / Boston, MA

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am applying for the Senior Software Developer role at CREA. What drew me to this position is straightforward: I spent seven years at Entrata building and owning the HUD income-limit import pipeline - the annual federal data process that powers LIHTC eligibility, rent calculations, HAP, and tax-credit determinations for over 100,000 housing units. That work is not adjacent to what CREA does; it is the same compliance domain, approached from the property management side of the transaction rather than the syndication side.

At Entrata, I owned this pipeline through dozens of annual releases, each requiring baseline validation, reconciliation, and rollback preparation because a wrong import affects thousands of residents' eligibility decisions. I designed it to be reliable first, and I maintained zero compliance violations across the full ownership period. The broader tech stack I worked in - PHP/Laravel on the backend, Angular on the frontend, Microsoft SQL Server in the early years, and cloud services including Azure throughout - maps directly to the technical environment described in this role.

Beyond the LIHTC compliance work, I bring production experience across the full stack: distributed async processing with retry logic and idempotency guarantees, SQL performance optimization across 200+ queries (30% gain), Docker microservices architecture, and CI/CD pipelines with automated test suites. I also bring .NET Framework experience from early-career web development and Power Apps familiarity from undergraduate work - both listed in your requirements.

CREA's mission - 106,000+ homes across 1,100+ communities over 20 years - is work I understand from the inside. I would welcome the opportunity to bring that domain depth to your technology team.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Venkata Lakshmi Parimala Pasupuleti
